

NICU DAY 7

Today was another good day for Olivia. Mostly we let her sleep and get used to more food in her stomach, sometime this weekend we are hoping to start the bolus feedings I talked about yesterday, the Doctor told us that because her esophagus is funnel shaped she possibly could have problems with that. It is a wait and see game right now which is very frustrating because we have no control over it. My cousin and his wife came to Dallas from Oklahoma City this afternoon to help us for a couple of days it was good to have someone to talk too that we can relate too. Olivia is doing better than expected and we have faith that she will go home and never look back at the end of all this. Pray that she tolerates bolus feedings tomorrow or the next day.

About the Author

40 year old married texan. asking for prayer for my very sick daughter right now.

Source: <http://CrossPosted.net>